The walking shark from West Papua, local people called Kalabia. It uses its fins to walk across the reef at night, hiding away in holes in the reef, seagrass or roots of the mangroves. Number of new species was described from this region.