Remember Who You Are

To remember who you are you need to forget who they told you to be.
Remembering who you are doesn't take much knowledge; it just requires that a person be brave enough to do what is in their hearts, because not everybody is. Remembering who you are doesn't just require you to think about who you are, but it rather influences you to act as who you are at your deepest levels. Remembering who you are requires you not to change and conform to the way that everyone who is around you may act, or the way that everyone around you may talk, and makes you focus on presenting your best self to people who may not receive you.

Always remember who you are, and the things in life that you have been through, so that you may always have the clearest vision of where you are now, and where you are going. There will be times when it will be easier not to be yourself, but never compromise, because doing so will only set you back from being where you want to be.
